

SOCIETY AND LIFESTYLE

Free access collections and archives

Below is a selection of both free-to-access and restricted archives that are an extremely valuable source of information for researchers. The full collection can be accessed and searched via the JISC website <http://www.jisc-content.ac.uk/>

19th Century British Pamphlets Online

Pamphlets covering the political, social and economic issues of the 1800s, with highlights including British policy in China, the philosophy of medicine and women and work.

Anglo-Saxon Cluster

All aspects of Anglo-Saxon history including bibliographical data and descriptions of landscape.

A Vision of Britain Through Time

Historical maps, statistics and travel writing charting rapid, wide-reaching change across the British landscape and people during the 19th and 20th Centuries.

Addressing History

Searchable Scottish Post Office Directories and historical maps of Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen, with a crowd sourcing tool allowing users to amend and enhance the data.

Cataloguing Kays

Discover the changing attitudes to clothing, fashion, retail, gender roles and family life from the 1920s to the end of the 20th century through the clothing catalogues of Kays and Co Ltd.

The Cause Papers

A church court archive of over 15,000 papers and related materials giving insight into northern English life between 1300 and the mid-Victorian era.

Connected Histories

Making new connections between major digital collections of British history from 1500-1900, covering family and local history, religion, politics, government, and entertainment, with research guides on areas such as 'Crime and Justice'.

Digitisation of Countryside Images

A national collection of 20th Century rural photography featuring extinct breeds, animal husbandry, the transition from horse-drawn to engine-powered machinery, and World War II prisoners of war.

History to Herstory

The lives of Yorkshire women, dating from 1100 to today, as told through diaries, letters, including from the Brontë sisters, books and photographs covering themes such as work, education, war, politics and health.

Histpop: Online Historical Population Reports

Details covering the British population during a period of massive social change, between 1801 to 1937, with statistics on births, deaths, marriages and other social trends, documents and over 100 contextual essays.

Language Box

Materials and resources for teaching and studying minority 'community' languages, so far including Bengali, Tigrinya, Malay and Scottish Gaelic.

Locating London's Past

A digitized map and cross referenced materials that provide fascinating detail on London during the 18th Century, including archaeology, crime, poverty and social policy.

StrandLines Online Community

Strandlines is a digital community of academic researchers, residents, workers and any other enthusiasts to share stories and images and uncover memories and archive material.

Restricted access collections and archives

19th Century UK Periodicals

Insights into life in 19th Century Britain, from attitudes to childhood, hobbies, leisure pursuits, comedy and the status of women.

British Periodicals

Hundreds of periodicals from the late 17th to early 20th Centuries on subjects including literature, philosophy, history, science, art, music, drama, archaeology, architecture and social sciences.

British Library Electronic Thesis Online (ETHOS) Service

Over 250,000 theses on a wide range of subjects from more than 100 participating UK higher education institutions, plus a tool kit and regular news updates.

Ireland Collection: digital resources from and about Ireland

Journals, magazines and manuscripts dating from the 18th century on all aspects of Ireland.

London Broadcasting Company Independent Radio News (LBC/IRN) Audio Archive

The most important commercial radio archive in the UK, based on 7,000 reel-to-reel tapes covering the period 1973 to the mid-1990s, with special focus on news and current affairs.

Statistical accounts of Scotland

Collated during the 1790s and 1830s by parish ministers and other local officials such as doctors and teachers, these statistical accounts, which include drawings, maps and photos, provide a picture of local and national Scottish life.